SHIP HITS BAR

GALVESTON, Nov. 29.—Two seamen jumped overboard and were either drowned or eaten by sharks when the Ward liner Esperanza went aground on Tampico Bar, according to the crew of the tanker P. Q. Barstow, which docked here yesterday.

Both the Barstow and the tanker Baldhill were in sight of the passenger vessel when she struck, flooding her engine rooms and causing a bad list. Two life boats of the Baldhill attempted to reach the vessel but failed. One was capsized by a wave and V. H. Wortham, seaman from Savannah, Ga., was forced to swim two miles to shore.

Further details of the mishap were expected this afternoon with the docking of the tanker Topka carrying nine members of the Esperanza's crew.

Water Supply Plan Is Brought Before City Hall Meeting

First Proposal Submitted Is For Minimum of Four Million Gallons Up to 259 a Day

The second preliminary meeting to get an adequate fresh water supply for this city, is under way in the chamber of commerce rooms and comprehensive plans are being presented by interests that own plants and canals.

Present are representatives of Port Neches, Nederland and all manufacturing and commercial interests in Port Arthur, together with citizens who are interested in the domestic water problem.

When George N. Bliss called the meeting to order he stated that it was for the purpose of hearing the representatives of several canal and irrigation interests on their proposals to furnish Port Arthur with fresh water.

Let All Listen
City Engineer J. O. Herpin suggested that the canal men present retire while each of their number was stating his proposition, but Bliss said that he did not think this would be necessary as he had spoken to all of them and they saw no reason why the proposals made should not be heard by each other.

Joe Broussard was the first invited to state his project and said that he was in favor of having all the others present.

The chairman stated that Broussard, Will Carroll and a representative of the McFadden rice canal interests would be heard this morning and while each of them had already filed plans and proposals to sell fresh water to the city, they were present to discuss in detail their offers and answer questions.

Broussard's company holdings cover the county to a point within 14 miles of Port Arthur and their offer is to extend a lateral from the nearest point to a reservoir to be constructed by the city at any point it wishes, the company being prepared to furnish 25,000 gallons a minute in four months time.

Rates Are Scaled
The intake plant is on Pine Island bayou near Voth and according to Broussard, the supply if fed directly from the Neches river at a point a half mile above the intake of the Beaumont city water supply.

Broussard pointed out that the widening and deepening of the Sabine Neches canal and Neches river might have the effect of allowing an undesirable amount of salt water to enter the river up to the Pine Island bayou intersection, and said that his company was prepared to construct a canal to the Village Creek outlet.

The rates set by the Broussard interest were scaled from three to seven cents a thousand gallons, with a minimum of four million gallons a month; the first 4-million at 7 cents, the next 3-million at 6 cents, the succeeding 3-million at 5 cents and all over 10 million gallons at 3 cents a thousand.

This price includes delivery of any quantity up to the capacity of the plant, which the representative said was equal to delivering 250 million gallons a day, the water to be whistled as pumped from the canal into the city's reservoir.

Belleville, Ill., Nov. 29.—An official investigation was started today into the accident of the T-5 army dirigible at Scott Field, which was ripped Friday when it struck a girder and $17,500 in helium lost. Several ground men were taking the big vessel from its hangar and slipped in the mud. As they relaxed on the landing ropes, a gust of wind struck the dirigible, forcing it into a steel girder. One fin was torn off and the side was ripped open, allowing the helium gas to escape.

Other officers elected were: Olivia Smith, Corsicana, corresponding secretary; J. F. Barnett, Palacios, treasurer; John Wolf, Palacios, business manager; presidents, Rev. W. A. Knight, Laredo; W. P. WINTER BUILDING TO BREAK RECORD

BEDFORD, Ind., Nov. 20.—Winter building will far exceed all previous records during the coming season, according to a survey of national building plans by the Indiana Limestone Quarrymen's association. During recent weeks the volume of contracts awarded has continued very large, the outlook being for activity throughout the winter months.

Building carried on in volume during the last cold season, the association says, clearly proved the advantages of winter construction work. Unemployment was prevented and the many other losses incident to perishing of idleness were eliminated. Costs were reduced accordingly, the association declares.

New Electric Road Is Granted Charter

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 20.—Organization of the company which is to build a double-track electric railroad between Kansas City and St. Louis will be completed Monday, according to an announcement here following issuance of a charter to the company yesterday. The proposed railroad will be 248 miles long.

The road will be financed by the sale of bonds. The company is capitalized at $2,400,000.

Starve 15 Days and Grow Young, He Says

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—If you want to be young, quit eating for 15 days. This is the advice of University of Chicago scientists, who have just completed a series of experiments on the ability of the body tissues to consume food and generate energy.

If the tissues are tired, as they're apt to be, a 15-day rest will restore them to the condition they were when you were 15.

The fast is not painful, the only great disadvantage being a gradual weakening. Hunger strikes are not the terrible ordeals they have been pictured, Prof. Carlson says.

DEATH CLUES ALL FLIVVER

Sheatsley Mystery Is No Nearer Solution

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 20.—Hav-ing run its course the Sheatsley fur-nace mystery today returned to the point where it began.

Authorities have exhausted every possible clue and theory and today find themselves no nearer a solution than a week ago last Monday night when Mrs. Addie Sheatsley's partly cremated remains were taken from the Lutheran parsonage furnace.

Only one step remains and very little in the light of a possible solution.

depends upon it. The chemist and the pathologist assigned to the case have not yet submitted their reports of the examination of Mrs. Sheatsley's charred organs.

FOUNDATION TO TAKE CENSUS OF FARMS

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—The first farm census, other than the regular government decennial census, will be begun by the Sears Roebuck agricultural foundation, Jan. 1, 1925.

The 1920 census is already out of date, according to Samuel R. Guard, foundation director. Revisions in land values, shifts in population, crop changes, and a number of factors, operation of which was hastened by readjustment after the war, call for a new count, according to officials of the foundation.

Chestnut trees were originally discovered in the Mediterranean region.

HUNTER KILLS DEER WITH ONLY BIRDSHOT

SAN ANAC LAKE, N. Y., Nov. 20.—Kenneth H. Holcombe of Rouses Point, is one of the few men in the north country to kill a deer with bird shot. On a recent morning he went duck hunting. He lagged one bird and then started home for breakfast. In a pasture with some horses he was amazed to see a fine buck. He crouched with a rifle and gave the deer both barrels. The buck ran for a half a mile and then crashed.

COLLEGE EDUCATION IS WORTH $72,000

BOSTON, Nov. 20.—A college education is worth $72,000 to its possessor, according to a report made public by Dean W. Lord of the Boston university. The estimate is based on a study of the earning capacity of college graduates. The cash value of a high school education is placed at $33,000.

The report gives the average maximum yearly income of the untrained man as $1,200; that of the high school graduate, $2,200, and of the college graduate, $3,000. The total earnings of each of the three types, up to the age of 60, are placed at $45,000, $78,000 and $150,000, respectively. While the untrained man at the age of 50 begins to drop toward dependence, the college man reaches his maximum earning capacity at 60.

ELEPHANTS OF NORTH AMERICA

Did you know that members of the elephant family once roamed the land all over North America? We see elephants only in zoos and circuses, but the elephants who lived in this country long ago would have towered three feet above these circus elephants. Those elephants were known as the mammoths. Their huge bones have been found in many places where excavating was done. Up in the ice country whole skeletons have been found preserved in the ice. That is how we know so much about these huge animals that vanished before white men came to this country—in fact, before the time of the Indian legend. Many of these mammoths were covered with hair, which helped them to keep warm when they lived far north and also helped to save their skins from the teeth of their enemies. Their tusks were not like those of the elephants we see today, but were beautifully curved outward and upward. These wonderful ivory tusks were sometimes as much as thirteen feet long, which means that they would reach higher than the ceiling in your living room.

When a herd of these monsters set off to go somewhere, nothing could stop them. They could ford most rivers and swim the rest. If a tree stood in their way one of the mammoths would just stop a minute, wind his trunk around it, pull it up, and go on his way, after tossing it aside.

All Weren't Hairy
In Mexico and the southern United States was another kind of mammoth which was not hairy, but was more like the elephant as we know it today.

Not only in North America but in Asia and Africa and Europe these huge creatures once made their homes. In Siberia one of them was found with the flesh and skin still on it, just as it had died thousands of years ago. It was sealed up in the ice. Evidently it had slipped into a crevice and died. The ice had closed over and acted as a perfect refrigerator all those years. It even had a piece of grass in its mouth that it had been eating when it had slipped on the treacherous ice and fallen, ages and ages ago!

One of the great mysteries of the world is why these giant beasts disappeared. Perhaps the climate of the whole world became colder, perhaps—but no one really knows.

THE DETECTIVE OF JUNGLELAND

BY MR. MONK
The Jungleland police had been wanting to get hold of a giraffe with a very black record, and decided to find him or perish in the attempt. I discovered the knave standing near a tree with a rope tied to his neck, so I quickly jumped on his back and seized the rope. This looked too simple for anything, I thought. All I had to do was to tie him to the tree and send for the police. But, just as I was about to do it, the giraffe began to tell me a story that brought tears to my eyes as big as walnuts. It seemed that he had tried to drown himself, but the water wasn't deep enough. Then he'd tried to hang himself, but he couldn't find a tree that was high enough—that was why he had the rope around his neck.

The giraffe by this time had so worked upon my tender feelings that I was crying like a baby. Then, suddenly, before I'd time to become the stern Detective Monk again, he bent his long neck underneath his body and grabbed my tail between his teeth—I thought he was going to bite it off. "Let go!" I yelled, in great pain. "Not until you let go of the rope!" he retorted. "Let go my tail and I will drop the rope," I said hastily. "Not likely!" the giraffe replied. "You first." So I had to let him go, after all. The chief said I was too slow to go to a snail's funeral.

(Watch for more of Mr. Monk's adventures soon to appear on the Boys' and Girls' Page.)

The old lady was timidly inspecting the stock of spectacles. "How much are these?" she asked, selecting a pair.
"A dollar and a half, madam."
"And how much without the case?"
"Well, the case makes little difference. Suppose we say $1.45."
"What? Is the case worth only five cents?"
"Yes, madam," firmly.
"Well, I'm very glad to hear it; it's the case I want."
And, placing a nickel on the counter, the dear old lady took up the case and walked timidly into the street, while the optician gasped for breath.

FOUR MAGIC TRICKS TO MYSTIFY YOUR FRIENDS

Almost every fellow envies the magician because I place it over this mysterious magician who is constantly springing some fresh surprise and mystifying the audience by his capers. Every fellow can do many of these same tricks without very much trouble. I'll tell you how some of these things are done, as they have been explained to me by a professional magician, Maxwell the Great.

"First," cautions Maxwell, "never tell an audience what you are going to do because that gets them looking too hard and they are liable to see something which you wish to keep hidden. Never repeat the same trick the same way during the same performance. If you happen to have hard luck and give your trick away, don't get fussed, just make a joke out of it and get your audience laughing with you."

Talk Constantly
When you start your performance, be as mysterious as possible and talk all the time so that the audience will be paying attention to what you are saying, not what you are doing."

Here are three tricks of the Hindoo Fakirs and the line of chatter to go with the tricks.
1. "Observe closely this miracle of the Hindoo fakirs," invites Maxwell. "You see on this table three glasses of clear water which I will name glasses one, two and three, or Mary, Annie and Minnie. I take glass one and pour a little of glass two into it and behold!—it becomes fiery red."

"Now, as I pour a little of glass three into the red, it becomes clear again." Here's what really happens: glass one is a solution of phenolphthalein, which you can get at a drug store, glass two is salt water and glass three is a solution of hydrochloric acid.

2. "With this simple little pocket handkerchief I defy the laws of effective card tricks I know. Know the fourth card from the top of the deck and then make a pretense of shuffling, but do not shuffle so that it will disturb the top four cards. This done, place the cards in four, more or less equal, piles.

Turning your back, invite a spectator to take the top card from the pile in which you know the fourth card and place it on or in one of the other piles. Invite a second spectator to repeat the same action. Do this a third time. The fourth time you are down to the card you know, so invite a spectator to look at this card carefully and bury it in one of the piles. Now have some one shuffle the cards.

This done, turn over any two cards in the deck and make a pretense of figuring and then announce what card it was that the spectator looked at. Of course, you have known all along, but this must not be apparent to your audience, so put in plenty of hocus pocus.

of the uprights—using a square to square around the piece, and then doing the drilling half-way through the piece from each face. Heavy wire is to be used for the drill.

Locate the spools on the crank shafts so that the center of the spool comes over the slot between the pieces making the race track. The spool is to be wedged on the shaft. This can be done by making a soft wood plug to fit the hole in the spool and splitting it down the center so a small groove can be cut for the wire. Place the wire through the spool and drive the two pieces of the split bushing into the hole of the spool, making the spool fast to the wire. A nail may now be used to bend the crank and the small end to the shaft in place in the uprights.

Adjust Shafts
A little adjusting and fitting will be necessary when bending ends of the shafts, so the spools are properly located. The arms should both be the same length—about 1 1/4 inches. The shaft frame and nail at the end of the race track are ready to make the spools. Select two 1/2 inch wood, with a 1/2 inch hole cut out of each, the pattern for which is on the page. The two 1/2 inch run the 2-inch guides. As the runners and guides are then brad the runners to the horses. Glue is not necessary, but if you have some at hand a thin coat applied to all the joints will add to their durability. Drill a small hole for the nail in each horse and insert a heavy piece of wire or a match stick for the tail.

Spools Must Match
The spools, of course, must be the same size, and the strings fastened to them must be of equal length. One end of the string is fastened to the spool and the other end of the string is fastened to a tack in the front end of the runner.

Try out the game and see that all parts work easily. Paint of different colors will add to its attractiveness. A little oil or soap rubbed on the sliders, guides and track will make the parts move more easily.

A finish line should be made across the track about two inches from the front of the shaft uprights. The game is played by two people. The horses are set at the end of the track and at a signal each person turns a crank. The one who draws his horse across the finish line first is the winner of this amusing "Derby".

IN SNOPPYQUOP LAND WHERE NOTHING SEEMS QUEER

Here's Oma Kayama, the Sheik of the Sahara, making an oast out of his tootsies. "Sudden showers tonight and Friday," said the weather report, so Oma is helping out. He sits on the sand which is there—no, not "sandwiches"—turns his face to the East, and says, "Let us pray."

His nose understands, and a delicate shower of water is soon descending onto his tootsies. Being an idol with feet of clay, soon roses bloom where bunions fear to tread, and the Sheik has a lovely garden—roses for tootsies, watered by noses, you might say. Then again you might not.

Oma's plumbing may be said to be exposed, but he believes in "Saying it with showers." In the background you will see the little dog who tried to imitate the snoppycheik, and only growl instead.

Grandfather's Chair Earns A Reward

"I do wish we'd get rid of that chair!" complained Barbara. "All the rest of the things in the room sort of harmonize, but that old chair is entirely out of place."
"I know, dear," her mother answered, "but it's grandfather's favorite chair. He'd feel quite lost without it."

"It not only looks awful," moaned Barbara, "but it creaks just awfully. If you even run against it it makes the most horrible noise. Grandfather won't have it fixed, and it really is a disgrace."
Just then they heard grandfather's shuffling footsteps, so Barbara changed the conversation quickly. She pouted sullenly, however, when grandfather sat down in his chair, amid loud squeaking and groanings from that despised piece of furniture.

However, Barbara's mother said something to Barbara's father, who declared that Barbara really was right about it, and he'd try to talk grandfather into letting them buy him a new chair.

Now, the old chair must have heard the discussion, for two nights later it found a chance to redeem itself.

It happened this way. The family had gone to bed early, as there was trouble with the furnace and the house had become quite cold.

Suddenly Barbara was awakened by hearing the voice of her father, whose room was at the head of the stairs, calling out, "Who's there?" Then the light on the stairs was switched on, and she heard a scrambling and banging downstairs. She hopped out of bed and ran to see what the excitement was. The rest of the family had already preceded her downstairs.

The living room was in disorder. In the center of it stood her father. "Whew! That was a narrow escape," he was saying. "Well, I'll have to look into the locks on those windows right away, that's sure enough."

On grandfather's chair lay a bag. "What's it all about?" Barbara asked excitedly.

"Burglars," answered her father sleepily. "They had the ladder from the dining room and laid it down in here while they went through my desk. Luckily they put it down on this chair, and it let out an awful creak which I heard, as it happened to be awake. When they heard me they dropped everything and got away."

"Well," giggled Barbara, nervously, "I'll never make another remark about that chair. Poor old thing, it tried to prove its usefulness in the household and I think it has earned its reward."

BED-TIME STORY

Once upon a time there was a girl who was very beautiful.

She had heard all about skin-toning lotions and rubber hair-brushes. She knew all about personal hygiene.

And every night after dancing in the stuffy Lobster Grotto, she tumbled into bed with her face unwashed and her hair uncombed.

She was too tired to even open the bedroom window.

And in the morning she awoke, starry-eyed and more beautiful than ever. For the only way to be beautiful is to be born beautiful!

So put that in your cold-cream jar and rub it in!

Questions—Answers

Dear Miss Gray: We have been married five years and I find that I don't love my husband as I once did. Instead of that I keep thinking of my old beau who is still single. I have no children. Would it be wrong to tell my husband how things are? —Unhappy.

Yes, it's even more wrong to let things be as they are. Aren't you letting yourself get into a dangerous, sentimental frame of mind? You can't really care for the other man as much as you do for your husband. Buck up, and make your marriage a success.

Dear Miss Gray: I have two men friends who seem to be in love with me. One of them has mentioned marriage once or twice. I know that I couldn't choose between them if they both proposed. Is it possible that I'm in love with both? —Twenty-two.

No, but it's quite possible you're in love with neither. When you really fall in love you'll know it instantly.

In New York

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—"Uncle Tom's Cabin" comes to town again, heralded by three-foot handbills, which proclaim it "a great and moral play coming to all the grandest and augustest of the mind of man ever conceived."

This play, we are told, is "replete with comedy and pathos and mingling with tears in a most marvelous fashion. A pair of full-blooded bloodhounds, trained to take part in the drama, are used in the thrilling scene showing Eliza escaping from the slave-hunters."

The handbill is embellished with woodcuts of the slave market. Large whippers Tom and the dead of Eliza. It carries you back years to the time when the last line breaks the illusion. It reads: "This is not a moving picture show."

Nick the Lobster King has retired. When he went out of business he "threw a free feed" for all who could crowd into his place on St. Nicholas avenue. The invitation was extended through a ten-foot sign on the restaurant. Nicholas Botagone started in as a waiter. Then he established a cheap little restaurant, earned his profits and opened the lobster cafe 12 years ago. His only reason for retiring was that he had made plenty of money to live comfortably the rest of his life—which is a pretty fair reason.

Radio is having about the same effect on public performers as the movie did. When actors left the stage for the screen and then returned to the stage they were billed "So-and-So (HIMSELF)". Now musicians who give concerts or recitals advertise "This concert will not be radioed."

In the week in which 18,717,732 shares changed hands on the stock exchange in transactions involving billions of dollars, the office boy was no mean figure. When he was needed he was needed badly. One broker who buzzed and pounded and whistled for a boy finally found him matching pennies.

TEXAS WRITER IS GUEST OF COLLEGE STUDENTS

DENVER, Nov. 29.—Miss Ruth Cross, Texas author whose rise to fame dates from the publishing of her first book, "The Golden Cocoon," was a guest of students at the College of Industrial Arts. She appeared as the guest of honor at a luncheon in the college cafeteria in company with Cecil Roberts, noted English poet. Mr. Roberts lectured in the auditorium.

HOUSTON CONCERN TO CUT DOWN CAPITAL

AUSTIN, Nov. 29.—Lynch Davidson company, Houston, of which former Lieut. Gov. Lynch Davidson is president, filed an amendment to its charter decreasing capital stock from $2,000,000 to $1,500,000.

JOHN W. DAVIS MAKES A SPLENDID LOSER, OFFERS HELP TO RAISE DEFICIT

John W. Davis is a splendid loser. After the flood he sent personal letters to a host of workers, sent a letter of personal appreciation to his personal publicity man, held a conference with the financial directors of the campaign and suggested ways and means of taking care of the deficit amounting approximately $200,000.

It is probable that the plan will follow that of other presidential years by calling on the democratic organization in the 48 states to make up the amount on a pro rata basis. As for the republican contest it was conducted without deficit under the budget system ordered by President Coolidge.

Approximately $4,000,000 was collected at a cost of $7,000 and 80,000 persons donated to the campaign fund. Republicans are financiers. They are liberal givers. When all outstanding bills are paid their national committee may have a small surplus which will be applied to keeping alive an organization for the collection of contributions 4 years hence.

All Americans of great wealth appear to have been on the republican side this year. They either gave their financial and moral support to the republican cause or they remained silent during the campaign.

A NEGRO JUDGE

Chicago has a negro judge, the first to be elected to sit in a court of record. Chicago has a negro state senator. He will make his appearance at Springfield the coming winter. Albert Bailey George is the negro judge-elect. He will sit in a court where most of the prisoners will be of his own color.

Chicago has a black belt. Martin B. Madden is the congressional representative of this district. He is a white man, was born in England, is a multimillionaire manufacturer, has been in congress 24 years, and is a candidate for speakership honors.

Democratic leaders were confident that thousands of negroes would vote the democratic ticket in the city of Chicago and elsewhere. On election day the negroes voted the republican ticket and helped to swell the Coolidge majority in all the northern states.

Chicago returned a huge majority for all the republican nominees for office and Chicago is the home of George F. S. Brennan, widely known democratic boss. All the labor wards returned huge majorities for the republican nominees. Shock to the boss.

WASHING DIRTY LINEN

According to the lawyers who are representing the brothers and sisters of George J. Gould, the losses sustained by the Gould estate by reason of the management of the late George Gould aggregate more than $30,000,000. When Jay Gould died he left behind him a fortune of $100,000,000 with positive instructions in his will that his eldest son should step into his shoes. George stepped in and handled the vast estate for years. He died in a foreign land and now one of his sons, J. Gould No. 3 has testified most willingly that his father was demented for many months before death came to him.

There are two sets of children in the family of George J. Gould and his widow, the mother of the young brood is fighting for her rights in the courts of New York. Jay Gould the first was the creator of the Gould fortune. He was a very wise business man. He hired the wisest lawyers that money could get. His will hasn't been broken but it may be torn to tatters before his children and his grandchildren finish their washing of dirty linen in the courts of the country.

Large estates and skillfully constructed wills make fat pickings for the legal fraternity.

PROSPERITY FOR ROADS

A very good year is the prospect in the coming 12 months for the railroads and the nation as a whole, according to the view of Charles H. Markham, president of the Illinois Central railroad. Scrutiny of the returns from railroad centers has convinced President Markham that the railroad employees refused to be delivered to Senator La Follette.

Labor leaders proposed to drive from public office those members of congress who did not vote for every bill they favored but Markham says their own members did not follow their dictates.

All the big railway centers of the country showed heavy republican gains. Coolidge ran first, Davis second, and La Follette third in the great industrial centers regardless of the fact that the labor leaders with Samuel Gompers as their voice pledged the union labor vote to the Wisconsin senator.

All the blues appear to have voted the republican ticket, as usual, just as they voted 4 years ago.

Truth is the American skilled worker is for a protective tariff and the republican party is the party of protection.

OWNER EMPLOYEE CONSUMER

What is to be said for or against the ownership of large corporations by users of the corporation's service or by its employees?

Such ownership has been tried out extensively in the United States and Canada during the past few years and it has been a distinct success. Many large industrial corporations and some railroads have adopted the policy of employee and consumer ownership, but the leaders in this field of ownership have been the public utilities corporations.

There are several distinct advantages to a nation in such ownership. One of these advantages is the fact that consumer and employee ownership diversifies securities greatly and instills the habit of thrift in large numbers of people. Many men and women get a start toward financial independence through purchasing one or more of the "baby securities" in different corporations.

Another advantage is that such purchases give the individual the pride of ownership and make him a better and more substantial citizen. A man owning stocks or bonds takes an interest in the business affairs of the day and is more keenly alive than the man who is not an investor.

I am really glad, however, little Marquise, that I can now write Jack all about the shop in a letter instead of telling him about it. When he gets that away look upon his face and his mouth settles into a thin red line, I am always frightened.
Jack told me in his last letter that it was the first one he had written in his own hand in a long time and I know you will be surprised when I tell you that it was only the second letter he has ever written to me that was not dictated. I was so happy when I saw his writing for I think the letter would have lost all its sweetness had I known it was dictated to Sally Atherton. I would much rather if such a letter had been dictated it would be given to a stranger. I don't know why this is so for I am sure that Sally is my friend and likes me very much. But that letter was something too intimate to be sent through the consciousness of another person, especially one who knows us both well.
Soon, little Marquise, your home—the Secret Drawer—will be changed again. The beautiful old desk that was given to you by your lover, the king, will have a place in my own little sitting room over here in smoky old Pittsburgh and the grime of the steel plants of the great industry of which you must have known nothing.
In this old house which until I have made it over would have probably hurt your artistic soul, you will be enshrined to sleep and dream, if amid the noise of a new world, a newer generation, and a newest mode of living, you can dream.
I shall probably not write you again until with all my other cares and Penates your beautiful desk with the secret drawer is again in my possession. It will seem like an old friend.

A STORY OF NEIGHBORLINESS
The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Nov. 30: The Good Samaritan. Luke 10:25-37.
BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D., Editor-in-Chief of The Congregationalist
Here, in a story that it takes only about one minute to read, Jesus has given us the most important thing in all religion and in all literature. If everything that has been written and taught were to be wiped out, and we had the privilege of saving just one word from it, surely the one most significant and important for humanity would be this story that we call The Parable of the Good Samaritan.
It begins with the most important question man can ask, What Shall I do to Inherit Eternal Life? It is true that the question was asked to tempt, or to try, Jesus; but Jesus answered it very seriously. He knew that a man never comes to see the true worth of life, and of his own life in particular, until he learns to ask that as the greatest of all inquiries.
So our story is related at once to the oldest quest of which man is capable.
Naturally, therefore, Jesus begins with the highest power that man may have in attaining that quest. He links man up with God. To love Him who has loved us, and to love Him with all the heart, soul, strength and mind, is the first duty and privilege of man, if he wants to start right at the beginning to seeking the highest and best life that is possible. He must get right with God.
Simple and Natural
And in the next place, or in the same place, for the second great commandment is "like unto the first," he must get right with his fellowmen.
Notice also how Jesus made the lawyer define these things for himself. Jesus did not say to him: "You know what's written in the law," and then go on to expound an interpretation that the lawyer might have questioned. He let the lawyer do his own interpreting. "What," he asked, "is written in the law? How readest thou?"
And the lawyer had to give an honest answer. He knew the truth. He defined it with unerring exactness, so unerringly that Jesus approved his definition and said, "Thou hast answered right; this do, and thou shalt live."
Every man knows the truth when he is honest with himself and his God. He knows that the hates and prejudices of life are wrong. He knows that he ought to be kind, and brotherly and forgiving, even toward those who do him wrong.
He has the great example of Jesus, as well as the words of Jesus to guide him. It is not for lack of truth but for lack of willingness to follow it simply and courageously that man is so far from God and from his fellowmen.
Being Neighborly
"Who is my neighbor?" said the lawyer. He ought to have known, and he did know. He was not, of course, a "lawyer" in our modern sense of term. He was a man of religion, a man versed in the Jewish law. He knew, or he ought to have known, what that law, in its highest precepts and examples, set forth as the proper relationship to all men.
But he was "willing to justify himself." And Jesus turned the tables upon him adroitly. He had asked, "who is my neighbor?" and Jesus said to him, "Whose neighbor are you going to be?"
Jesus showed him that there is no limit to this business of being neighborly. It does not stop at groups or sects, or classes, or racial or territorial boundaries. He told the story of "the good Samaritan," a man of race and religion that the prejudiced Jew despised, and he told the story to such good effect that once more facing the lawyer to make his own definitions, the latter was compelled to acknowledge that a Samaritan, even in contrast to a Jewish priest and a Levite, has on an occasion of need proved himself the real neighbor.
"Which now of these three, thinkest thou, was neighbor unto him that fell among the thieves?" And he said He that showed mercy on him.
"Then said Jesus unto him, Go, and do thou likewise."
And that is precisely what Jesus says out of the great parable to you and me.

Beaumont High to Meet Marshall In Next Title Battle

BY BILL ARCHER
The News Sports Editor

EITHER on December 6, or before that date, the Purple of Beaumont High will tangle up with Marshall High in another game of the state interscholastic race for Texas honors. The game should test the mettle of the Beaumont contingent, as Marshall has one of the strongest squads in the East Texas loop.

Location of the game has not been decided.

Marshall has conquered Min-cola, Jacksonville, Tyler, Texas, Arkana, Athens, Teneha and Henderson. Possibly the only club in this list of any notable strength is the Texas Arkana team; however, Marshall conquered over Texas Arkana High easily. Wins over the other clubs in her division would not necessarily make the Marshall eleven formidable against Beaumont, since the Purple has bested such squads as Port Arthur High and Houston Central, the latter possibly the best team in this district, and both stronger clubs than the Texas Arkana squad, which, next to Marshall High, is the strongest football team in the Marshall district.

Purple Looks Strongest
When Beaumont and Marshall meet, wherever they meet, the game will develop into an even bet as to which team is the better. But if either team has an edge over the other, it is Beaumont, since the Purple has met stronger opposition than has Marshall, and since Beaumont has defeated the championship squad of another district, this being a fact which the Marshall eleven has not accomplished yet.

Eight clubs, including Beaumont and Marshall, are left in the state high school running, the other teams being Cisco, Cleburne, Temple, Waco, Oak Cliff and Vernon. Of the eight contingents, Cisco, Cleburne and the Waco clubs are probably the strongest left in the running, with the titanic Purple very likely to drop out of either Cleburne or Cisco.

Cisco and Cleburne play on the Cisco field the coming week; Temple and Waco are matched and Oak Cliff faces Vernon as the next classic, but locations of the last two games have not been decided upon. Cleburne stands a good chance to drop a game to the Cisco Lions, however, Coach Fred Enry has developed one of the strongest clubs in the history of the school, and may take the game from the Lions. Waco will probably emerge victorious over Temple, and the Vernon-Oak Cliff game is decidedly a toss-up.

Location of the Beaumont-Marshall game will probably be decided by a toss of the coin, although Beaumont is making a strong bid for the game to be played in Jefferson county at Magnolia Park. Beaumont has a wider field to draw attendance from, and the location is more easily reached by football fans than is that of Marshall, and should the event be staged in Beaumont, the gate receipts would probably be larger than in Marshall. However, the location is a matter which the coaches will agree upon, and which will be announced when the coin is flipped.

PIRATES PLAY IN GALVESTON

For the first time this season, the Pirates leave their good ship Port Arthur anchored at shore here tomorrow to invade a foreign fair to investigate the prowess of the Hurricane, blowing on its own sea-coast. The Pirates will own the foreign field with two games already tucked under her belt against the Hurricanes, one of which was a 6-0-0 tie, and the other a 15-0-0 victory for the locals. The Hurricanes, however, will probably be stronger on their home field than they have ever appeared in Port Arthur, and the Pirate crew may find the sled a little harder over there.

A large number of followers of the team will journey with the boys to Galveston to witness the contest, the team being captained again by "German" Pletman, who, after a long illness, has resumed charge of the squad and will probably get in the mixup tomorrow again.

All members of the Pirate team are urged to be on hand at the interurban station tomorrow morning at 7 o'clock, to catch the 7 o'clock car to Beaumont. The players, 18 strong, will entrain over the Southern Pacific out of Beaumont at 8:40 o'clock, returning to Port Arthur late Sunday night.

Gets Decision

CLEVELAND, Nov. 29.—Quintin Rojas, Chilean heavyweight, won the referee's decision in a 12-round swat fest with John Rizzo, Cleveland, here last night. Young Bobby Tracy, Buffalo, drew a decision over the veteran Mel Coogan, New York light-weight, in the 8 round semi-final.

BANKERS LOSE TOUGH SCRAP

The Independents took the Bankers in camp last night in the regular week-end game at Franklin gymnasium, 42 and 4, increasing their stride in the race for City Basketball honors.

A large number of cage fans witnessed the game, which was begun at 7:40 o'clock.
The score:
Independents (42) (4) Bankers
Haltin 2 Norris
Blumen 2 Blackman
Ridley 2 Gilbey
Graham 2 Stacey
Gilbey 2 Stacey
Substitutions—Independents, Lewis for Gilbey, Gilbey for Graham, Graham for Gilbey, Bankers, Gregory for Stacey, Stacey for Norris, Norris for Duco.
Scoring—Haltin 15, Ridley 15, Lewis 2, Wilson 2, Graham 2, Blackman 2, Gregory 2.

THE NUT CRACKER

Tale is this year's Big Three champion... A Big Three champion is one of those things which are referred to as ornamental but not useful.
It's all over but the shouting... The shouting will come when Coach Purvis of the Purple is picked for the All-America.
Wishing only to reform himself, Pigeon differs from the average prizefighter who keeps busy teaching hooked watches.

Judging him by his performance against California, Mr. Cuddelback of Stanford is a "nut" worth studying.

It becomes easier to believe honesty is the best policy when you learn Pigeon has been booked for a contest against Vanderbilt.

Whitely Johnson says when he started playing golf he didn't know a ball from a strike... And Mr. O'Grady wants to know how he ever escaped being an umpire.

Another thing that keeps nagging golf fans is that none of the wealthy alumni have had the idea to build a stadium.

Aggravating fact is the name of a Cleveland race horse... Those who have laid bets on him appreciate the full significance of the name.

Those football stars are seeking to win heavyweight honors in the prize ring, not seeming to know there is a difference between the prize-ring and the prize-ring.

Chief Evans is going to teach Mr. Cuddelback of Stanford golf... This should result in the executive bringing either his silence or his nibble.

Red Grange made more points than any player in the conference this year... The conference of the conference is the conference of the conference.

Mr. Tilden's statement that Helen Wills will not be beaten for five years is startling... We had no idea any one was even mad at the young lady.

Sport Shorts

Both Harvard and Yale had trouble stopping "Zeke" Oberlander, Dartmouth's fast-moving halfback. He had the big punch of the "airline" offense.

This has been a tough season for two of the nation's most widely known teams, Vanderbilt and Georgia Tech. Both have suffered several reverses.

Kaw of Cornell and Hampton of Williams, All-American selections in their day, are starting for the Buffalo professional football team.

In Wilson, formerly of Penn State, the Army has a great running back, and in Hunt, formerly of Pitt, the Navy has a great defensive man in the east, quite a combination to stop.

Coach Harlow of Colgate, despite the Nebraska defeat, will consider the season a huge success if he beats Syracuse.

"Chuck" Darling of Boston College is one of the best punters in the east.

"Ducky" Pond, Yale halfback, has a habit of playing his best in the big games. His 45-yard run for a touchdown enabled the Blue to get a tie with the Army.

Never a standard versatile athlete, is one of the outstanding halfbacks on the coast. He is also a clever punter.

The 1924 crop of quarterbacks has not as yet produced any "Thomas Edison" thinkers. Stuhldreher of Notre Dame is one of the best.

Unless his handlers change their mind, Epitard, French horse, will be retired from turf and placed in stud this winter.

Bludge is being prepared to succeed Leckelbach at short for Washington when the veteran retires.

The last 20-round fight of importance on the Pacific coast was between Dundee and Livers.

For the first time in more than five years Sandy Reid, noted golf professional, went through the season without making a hole in one.

Chick Evans thinks the golf stroke should be made a part of gymnasium exercises in the public schools.

O. B. Keeler, gifted golf writer, changed Bobby Jones' diet at Merion and it helped the southerner win the national golf title.

Too bad Notre Dame doesn't play Illinois. Such a game was considered last winter. It would have been a classic.

Cornell's defeat of Columbia makes it seem as if the "Big Red" team was rounding into form. Debia is now pointing his team for the Penn game.

"Red" Grange has a younger brother who appears to be a second edition of the Purple star as far as football ability is concerned.

Marguerite's unexpected defeat by Creighton, 21 to 7, was the first reverse suffered by that team in three years.

Deaton has an infidel, Gensinger, who is a dead ringer for Hans Wagner in physique and style. He has yet to prove his ability.

"Mule" Shively, understudy to Joe Judge at first base for Washington, was a football star at college before turning "pro" ball player.

FATE PLAYS TRUMP CARD FOR BIG TEN TITLE

BY BILLY EVANS

FATE and football have often gone hand in hand. Chicago has won the "Big Ten" grid title and fate must deserve a rating in the summary as having scored the winning touchdown.

This time fate hit upon "Five Yards" McCarthy, Chicago's plunging back as its victim. Thereby hangs an interesting tale.

Prior to the Illinois game the Chicago team was the guest of honor at a social function, which had Coach Stagg as the chief speaker of the occasion. When the guests sat down to dinner, a child reserved near the head of the table for one of the Chicago stars was vacant. It developed that "Five Yards" McCarthy was the absentee.

Coach Stagg Plainly Perceved
Coach Stagg was plainly perceiving. He passed the remark that all but but one of his regulars appreciated the courtesy that had been extended the Chicago team.

Early the next morning former Maroon stars and prominent alumni made it a point to inform McCarthy that he had previously cried, seriously offended his coach. All suggested that he try to make amends.

"Football games are not won at banquet tables. Oratory, which is mostly hot air, never made any touchdowns on the football field. And besides I wasn't hungry."

That is the way McCarthy explained his absence from the social function. However, McCarthy was prevailed upon to call on his coach and try to get back in Stagg's good graces.

The story is that the day of the Illinois game McCarthy was closeted with Stagg for an hour. What passed between the two no one but Stagg and McCarthy will probably ever know. McCarthy is the fighting type; there doesn't seem to be much sentiment in his makeup; a fellow who apparently believes solely in the survival of the fittest.

However, when he emerged from Stagg's office those who know say that he was brushing aside several tears, proof that laughter was no part of the program.

Played Game of Career
That afternoon McCarthy played the game of his career. He tied with Harold "Red" Grange for the honors of the day. A draw would have been a good decision as the game ended in a 21-21 tie.

Walter Camp, famous football authority, who was a spectator, said no football game that he ever saw compared with the Illinois-Chicago game as far as the work of McCarthy and Grange was concerned.

In that one game "Five Yards" McCarthy won national recognition as a gridiron star. Almost alone he tied the powerful Illinois eleven, up until then considered well nigh unbeatable.

An invasion to social affairs and a lack of hunger, homely words for fate, touched off the first that made "Five Yards" McCarthy a football hero and Stagg the "Old Master," a real 1924 coachback.

Tony Halts Training to Give Lowdown On Movie Life

Tony Bernardi came to Port Arthur in a cinema a long, long time before he got here in person.
Yes, Tony has been a movie actor.
"That's the lowdown," Tony confessed yesterday in a conversation. "But it's not the best-known like a lot of folks think. Movie actors work, and believe me, they work hard to earn their money."
And if anyone should know how hard the movie queens and painted beauties do work to earn their "bread and butter," it should be Tony Bernardi, the lad from the Land of Grinnell, where might decrease might, because Tony spent six years of his life following the lead and call, which command, "to the letter," Tony smiles, of cinema directors.

It was back in his more precocious days, when Tony's ears were not muffled quite so round like tomatos, and his front teeth hadn't been chipped off quite as much as they now are, that Tony Bernardi from old Italy walked into the Hollywood of sunny California and signed his first piece of paper that put him in the movies.

"I went in for the rough stuff," Tony confessed yesterday. "I had to act the part of the thug, and the toughs with Bull Montana and the other 'four birds' of the movies."

And though it was that Tony spilled the beans that he had come to Port Arthur on the green with Bill Anderson, rip-roaring cowboy actor, and Doug Fairbanks, rip-roaring star, in several of their most famous productions.

It was out in Hollywood, Tony admits, that he formed a strong alliance with Bull Montana, long-time wrestler, wrestler and movie star in succession, and became a grapple himself.

"Bull gave me the idea—he got the wrestling bug in my head, and I was getting too heavy and still too short for my weight to go on boxing, as I had been," Tony declared. And that's how Tony got started.

"But that's all off line," Tony concluded abruptly. "Here I am down here in Port Arthur, getting ready to meet Rudy Dusek Monday night, and I guess I'd better stop chattering to you if I do any training this afternoon." So Tony did stop, and went back to his work on the mats, getting ready for Rudy.

Confidentially, Tony looks fit as a fiddle, too.

Army Meets Navy Today In Traditional Gridiron Scrap

BALTIMORE, Nov. 29.—In crowded hotel lobbies and on congested street corners, blue-clad groups recalled today the times in the past when the Navy was in a bad jam. They were reminded of the days of Barry and Jones and the time not so long back when the Stars and Stripes was fighting in the North Sea. It was a tight football place as it was today with the annual game between the Cadets and Midshipmen.

Bested only by the great Notre Dame team and tied by a fine Yale eleven, the Army presented a machine that was an overwhelming choice to win the game that is rubber in the long series between the two academies.

Bad Weather Hovers.
Pushed all around by the professors at Annapolis and several of the less illustrious football teams in the east, the Navy had only the hope of bad weather that would stop up the Army team and throw the game into the breeze.

It did look like Navy weather this morning. It is recent tradition that it must rain on an Army-Navy game day and it was trying to get started this morning. The skies were heavy and there was a feel of dampness in the air.

Threatening weather, however, failed to loosen up the severity of tickets and a crowd of 80,000 was assured. It was shown last week at New Haven when 80,000 stood in a drenching rain to see Yale and Harvard play that football fans are little about the weather and there are no wilder fans than the Army and Navy crowd.

Coolidge to See Game.
President Coolidge and his party, the secretaries of the army, navy and other cabinet members, hosts of high ranking army and navy officers and prominent state and city officials were among those to whom tideline horses were assigned.

"FIVE-YARDS" MCCARTHY

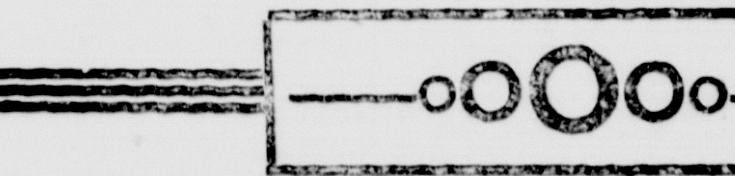

NEW RULES FOR YOUNG PLAYERS

DETROIT, Nov. 29.—Southern Michigan coaches have taken another step ahead of the rest of the country in the matter of protecting interscholastic athletes from undue physical strain.

Undoubtedly high school athletes are not fully developed physically and it stands to reason that they should not be put to the same tests of stamina as are college and professional athletes.

These mentors have voted to place a 12-minute maximum for the quarterly sessions of all football camps played in their district and to increase the time-out limit between tournament in the east and was beaten only once and that by the champion.

Fourth position in the ranking will doubtless go to Eleanor Goss of New York and fifth to Marion Zinderstein of Wilmington, Del.

S.M.U. READY TO CONCEDE TITLE

DALLAS, Nov. 29.—Southern Methodist University is prepared to concede 1924 Southwestern conference football laurels to Baylor University.

This was made known in a statement issued by Ray Morrison, S. M. U. coach who denied rumors that S. M. U. would contest the probable award to Baylor.

"Both teams were undefeated in the conference," Morrison's statement said. "Since S. M. U. has played four tie games and in view of Baylor's victories over Arkansas and A. and M. (Texas team tied by S. M. U.) it seems now the only part of good sportsmanship to concede the championship."

OAK CLIFF HI WINS CLASSIC

DALLAS, Nov. 29.—Oak Cliff High school's gridiron warriors advanced toward the state championship today with Highland Park High scalp under their belt.

With a 30 to 7 win over the Highlanders here yesterday Oak Cliff clinched sectional laurels and after clashing with Forest next Monday in the city series, will be free to finish the state schedule.

The big blue team outlasted the Highlanders, but the latter had the Leopards on the jump throughout.

Ball players as a rule are desirable men in football in working out forward pass plays. They can throw and catch.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

So Tom Tucker had five sandwiches, and Jack Horner had three pieces of fruit cake.

All the Mother Goose people on Pippin Hill were so interested in the Riddle Lady's riddles that nobody had moved scarcely.

But after while Mrs. John insisted on serving tea in the orchard.

"It's quite correct to have tea at five, you know," she said, "and it will give your brains a rest."

So Tom Tucker had five sandwiches, and Jack Horner had three pieces of fruit cake and Miss Muffet had ever so many cups of tea, and everybody had a fine time.

The Riddle Lady was soon rested and she got ready to ask the next riddle.

"Is the next one to rhyme?" asked Nancy.

"I can make it either way," said the Riddle Lady. "I can make it to rhyme or not to rhyme. Whichever you like."

"Let's vote on it," suggested Mrs. John. "I never liked to vote but it seems to be the only way to find out just what people want."

"It's a good idea," said Mrs. Spratt. "Let's vote."

So Nancy and Nick took small pieces of paper and passed around to all the people on Pippin Hill and they wrote on them "yes" or "no" according to their views.

The yes' had it, so the Riddle Lady made her next riddle in rhyme.

"It's not very hard," said she. "It is far easier than a cross-word puzzle, at least."

So she began:

"There is a chap who bothers us, a teasing, freezing fellow, He comes late in the autumn and turns the leaves all yellow, Shakes sugar on the pumpkin, and sugar on the grape, But leaves the corn and all the flowers in dreadful shape. He nips the rose and dahlia, the golden-rod and phlox, And ruins all the tiny leaves of privet hedge and box. He jumps upon the cat-tails all sleek in velvet brown, And shifts their jackets up the back and musses them with down. He dusts the fences, fields and trees with powder white as milk, And slyly cracks the milk-weed pods and spills out all the silk. He spends the winter bragging about the things he does, He paints designs on windows—great ferns of misty fuzz. He freezes land the water in lily pond and mudhole, And chuckles like a silly goose when things get in a muddle, And all the little turtles and fishes in the river, Turn slowly into chunks of ice and haven't room to shiver."

"Goodness! That's an easy one," said Mister Bunting. "It's Jack Frost I know. That's why I go hunting for rabbit skins in the fall—to 'right' him!" said the Riddle Lady.

THE FIRST PRINTED NEWSPAPERS.

If you will look at the word "news" you will see that it contains the initials of the four directions—north, east, west and south. Someone noticed this long ago and set up a chain that the word was "wined" out of those four letters, "because news came from all directions." As a matter of fact, that is a seems to be just fancy. The men who make dictionaries say that "news" comes from "new," and we can well believe them. News is the report of recent events.

ops wrote leaflets about religion. Others wrote about politics and kings.

For a long while, the leaflets were not put out at regular times. When a man got a new idea, he would have a leaflet printed. Then he might wait a month or a year before he put out another one.

By and by, certain men decided to print leaflets every so often—say once or twice a week. They decided to print news as well as their own ideas. Perhaps they thought that people would buy the leaflets for the sake of the news, and might read the ideas of the editor, too.

Here we see a design printed on an early London paper which made a specialty of telling news about parliament. The faces of members were certainly not made in a flattering way.

hear "the news." In ancient Greece, men used to sit in barber shops, or gather in the market-places to "swan" news. The Romans of olden days had public news-sheets, which were written by hand and posted outdoors so all might read.

During the Middle Ages, men were sometimes hired to write "news letters" from cities like Paris or London to nobles living in the country.

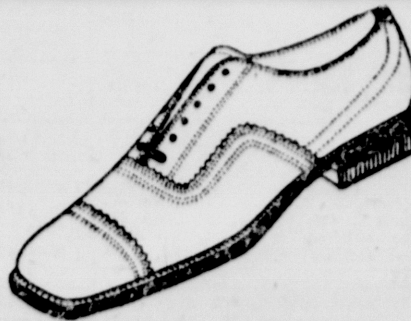

Then came the printing press. Some men wanted to tell their ideas without writing whole books. So they had leaflets printed. Martin Luther, John Calvin and many his-

It is hard to say where the first news-letters or newspapers were printed. London and Paris seem to have the best claims; and London was probably ahead of Paris. The British museum contains three copies of a newspaper said to have been put out by order of Queen Elizabeth when the Spanish Armada was coming near England.

"News of the Present Week" was started by an Englishman named Butler some 25 years later. It was largely made up of second-hand or third-hand gossip.
